How to Teach

Latin for Children Primer A

A Suggested Schedule

This is a basic weekly schedule, taking approximately thirty minutes per day, to be modified as necessary by the teacher.

1

Day One: Present the paradigm (grammar chant) and vocabulary, and introduce the grammar from the Grammar Lesson. The students should chant through the paradigm and vocabulary two to three times. Watch the video.

2

Day Two: Review the paradigm (grammar chant) and vocabulary and have students chant through them again two to three times. Spend time explaining the Grammar Lesson, paying special attention to the examples. You may want to have students read the Grammar Lesson aloud, and then ask them which sentences appear to be the most important. Have the students circle those key sentences (with a colored pencil, if possible) for future reference. After this, the worksheet can be started in class or assigned as homework. The students should also begin Activity Book! exercises (to impart mastery of the vocabulary and paradigm).

Day Three: Once again, the day should start with some quick chanting of the paradigm and vocabulary. The worksheet should be either started or completed. Check students' work and have them make any necessary corrections. Grammar should be reviewed and retaught as necessary. One means of reviewing grammar can be to view the grammar video again, to ensure students understand the key grammatical concepts for that chapter. Continue with Activity Book! assignments (this could be done as homework or as part of the students' seatwork).

Day Four: Have students do a quick chanting of the paradigm and vocabulary. Next, have them complete the puzzles from the Activity Book! chapter. Review the video as necessary. Begin the History Reader after students have completed the worksheet. (Note: We suggest starting the LFCA History Reader roughly halfway through the LFCA textbook.)

5

Day Five: Students should take the quiz. Finish/complete the History Reader chapter.

Along the Appian Way, Part 1

Italy, during the reign of Tiberius Julius Caesar, AD 14–37

Marcus stared down at the road beneath his feet, studying it intently.

“Did you find any yet?” asked Julia, who was now getting quite bored. “Why did I decide dare (to give) my afternoon for this silly hunt?” She kicked a rock, sending it skittering away.

Marcus moved back and forth, methodically scanning between the stones that made up the road. He didn’t answer, but reviewed the map on the scroll he was holding.

“Hello? Marcus, are we rich yet? I could have stayed home if I wanted labōrāre (to work).”

Marcus looked up. “No, but I bet there’s something right around the corner. This is the Appian Way, the finest road in the world! Amō (I love) this road! Remember when we found three coins all in the same day?” He tapped an area on the map. “Right here by the silva (forest).”

“Yes, yes. And we nearly got arrested for theft!” said Julia. “Remember that part of the fābula (story)?”

Marcus shook his head. “If we could even find one coin, it could buy us—”

“Wait! Wait . . .” Julia interrupted. She got quiet and listened. “Do you hear that?” The terra (earth) began to shake.

A horse suddenly galloped into view, rounding the corner from behind a line of cypress trees. Julia dove off the side of the road. Marcus froze as the rider barrelled down on him.

Grammar Lesson

Verbs: Action Words

In this first chapter, you will learn five verbs and five nouns. The first five words on your vocabulary list are verbs. Verbs are words that show action or a state of being. For example, in the clause “I work in the forest,” which word is the action word? Well, “work,” of course! The way we say “I work” in Latin is labōrō: so labōrō is a verb, a Latin action word. Sometimes verbs can show a state of being, too, like when we say, “He is tired.” The word “is” is a kind of verb that shows a state of being (being tired), but we will teach you about verbs that show a state of being later. For now, just remember the definition of verbs as words that show action or a state of being.

Grammar Lesson

Latin: Fewer Words Than English, But Many Word Endings

There are a lot of words in English, but they rarely have different endings. For example, the verb “love” stays the same whether we say “I love,” “we love,” or “they love.” Sometimes we do add an ending, like when we say “he loves” or “we loved.” In Latin, though, the verb for love (amō) changes its ending very often! We will learn the various endings that come with Latin verbs (and nouns) so that we can know what they mean and how to translate them. (To translate a Latin word, by the way, means to tell what a Latin word means in English. The translation of amō is “I love.”) Now you know that Latin is a language of many endings, but fewer words than English!

Teacher’s Note: This is from the Latin coniugō, which means “join together,” because when we conjugate a verb we join an ending to the verb’s stem.

Look at the chant chart at the beginning of the chapter. It shows you one of the most common words in Latin (the verb “love”) with all its endings: the singular and the plural for present, active, and indicative—six endings in all. When we list a verb with all its endings, it’s called conjugating a verb. TN

You can also see that a Latin verb such as amō actually contains two words in English! The word amō means “I love,” so it contains not only the word “love,” but also the word “I.” The ending of the verb (-o in this case) tells you that it is “I” who is doing the loving. Pronouns such as “I,” “you,” “he,” “she,” “it,” “we,” and “they” are all little words that tell you who is doing the action of the verb. The ending of a Latin verb tells you which pronoun to use in English. We will study these endings next week, so don’t worry too much about them now. Figure 1-1, however, shows you how the verb endings change:

	Singular	Plural
1st person	amō: I love	amāmus: we love
2nd person	amās: you love	amātis: you all love
3rd person	amat: he, she, or it loves	amant: they love

A Verb in Four Parts: The Four Principal Parts

If you look at the Memory Page, you will see that each Latin verb has four different forms (amō, amāre, amāvī, amātum). We call each form a principal part. Why? Because each part is an important form that shows us how to make other forms of the verb. It is a principal part because it is an important part to know. No need to worry about the other forms that come from these principal parts: you will learn those in good time. Learning the principal parts now, however, will be fun and will save you a lot of time later!

D. Derivatives

On the next page we explain what a derivative is, but before you head there, in the following sentences try to figure out the derivative by circling the word that you think might come from the Latin word that is provided.

1. Aesop is famous for his fables / animals. (fābula)
2. Reward will follow hard times / labor (labōrō)

Thousands of English words come from Latin. We call these English words derivatives because they are derived (taken) from an original Latin word called the Latin root. For instance, the word “derivative” is itself a derivative. It comes from the Latin words dē (down from) and rīvus (river, stream). This means that a derivative is a word that flows down or off a river of . . . words!

A. Study

Study the following English derivatives that come from the Latin words you have learned this week:

Latin	English
amō	amity, amorous, enamor, amateur
dō	donate, donation
intrō	entrance, introduce, introduction
labōrō	labor, laboratory
nārrō	narrate, narration, narrative
aqua	aquatic
fābula	fable, fabulous

Terra firma means “firm ground.”

- The word “Pennsylvania” is another Latin derivative. Pennsylvania was one of the original thirteen colonies that formed the United States. It was founded by William Penn. What do you think the word “Pennsylvania” might mean? Circle your answer below:

a. The land of big pencils

b. The land of Penn

c. Penn's Woods

Along the Appian Way, Part 2

As he watched the horse galloping toward him, Marcus couldn't decide which way to jump to get out of the way. The rider pulled hard on the reins. The horse skidded and slipped as it tried to stop on the smooth rocks on the surface of the Roman via (road).

Julia gasped. Marcus only managed to wince and clamp his eyes shut. The horse stopped just in front of Marcus, snorting warmly in his face.

Unfortunately, the rider did not stop.

Julia watched as the rider tumbled up over the horse's neck and launched into the air over Marcus's head. The rider landed on his back with a nasty thump, his bag falling into a fossa (ditch), spilling several scrolls and a half-eaten loaf of bread onto the ground.

All was still again except for a soft aura (breeze).

Marcus and Julia quickly scrambled over to the rider to help. As Julia helped the rider to his feet, Marcus collected the scattered scrolls. He noticed the glittering gold seals that secured some scrolls.

"Are you OK?!"

"I am sooooo sorry."

The messenger looked dazed but he hastily dusted himself off. Then he turned with a scowl and grabbed his scrolls from Marcus's hands.

"I . . . I didn't mean to be in your—"

Without so much as a word, the rider swung back up on his horse. With a kick of his heels, the rider and horse disappeared down the via (road).

Let freedom ring!

Teacher's Note: The verb sum, esse, fui, futurum is an irregular verb, but one that is very common. You will note that the forms of its principal parts don't follow the pattern of other (regular) verbs in this list. For now, students will simply need to memorize this important verb as an irregular verb.

Canō* is a synonym of cantō. Both verbs mean "I sing."

The letters in this column are abbreviations (short ways of saying something) for noun jobs that will be explained in chapter 9. Note them, but there is no need to memorize them.

Along the Appian Way, Part 3

Marcus decided that he was done getting rich for one day. He and Julia ran off to play somewhere safer.

Julia threw a rock into the ocean as a small unda (wave) splashed gently onto the beach. “It’s a good thing you didn’t hurt that scroll you borrowed. You know what our teacher, Master Balbus, would have done to you if you had ripped his map? You don’t want to stir up his ira (anger).”

“No, I do not and I don’t want to think about it,” Marcus said as he tried to relax, squishing his toes into the warm sand. “Sum (I am) happy stāre (to stand) here and try to relax. Getting nearly run over by a horse is scary enough for one day, thank you.”

Marcus pulled out the borrowed map of his hometown once more. He knew if he were ever to be a Roman road builder he would have to study the very best—

Wait a minute! Marcus spun the scroll around in his hands. It seemed to be stuck together and wouldn’t open.

He gasped. Julia spun around spectāre (to look at) Marcus. “What’s wrong?”

“I’m dead.”

The scroll that now lay in Marcus’s hand was not his teacher’s scroll. The scroll in Marcus’s hand had a bright golden seal!

Noun Declensions

Do you remember what a noun is from your English grammar class? Just in case you forgot, a noun is a word that names a person, place, thing, or sometimes an idea. Do you remember how in the last chapter we found that verbs have all sorts of different endings? Well, nouns have a whole set of endings all their own. As we have learned, when we put together all of the different forms of a verb, we call it conjugating a verb. When we put together the different forms of a noun, we call it declining a noun. When we create a chart of a declined noun, we call that chart a declension.

The secretary was inundated with so much paperwork that she made error after error and became extremely irritated.

- Now write your own sentence using at least two derivatives from this week’s vocabulary list above.
